With end of NDP-1, dairy sector awaits its newer, bigger avatar

NDP-2 will consider private dairies for assistance in processing, market development

RUTAM VORA
Ahmedabad, December 3

With the first phase of the National Dairy Plan (NDP-1) having ended on November 30, all eyes are now on the Centre, which has to clear the second phase of the ambitious plan, which, for the first time, will look to cover private dairies seeking assistance. While NDP-1, which was launched in 2012 with an outlay of ₹2,242 crore, focussed on milk production and breed development, the second phase is aimed at improving the processing infrastructure and creating market access in remote and unexplored areas in the country.

"There is also a discussion about including private dairies in the coverage of NDP-2," Dilip Rath, Chairman, National Dairy Development Board (NDDB), told BusinessLine. "For the first time private dairies are being considered for assistance to set up processing facilities under the same terms and conditions as cooperatives. They will, however, have to meet the set criteria and qualify for support. But if this happens, it will be a big support for small private dairies."

NDDB has initiated talks with the World Bank for assistance,

Dilip Rath, Chairman, National Dairy Development Board

and with the concerned government departments, too. The projected financial outlay for NDP-2, which is likely to be cleared soon, is about ₹8,000 crore.

'Dark spots'

It is a "unfinished dream" of Dr Verghese Kurien, considered the Milkman of India, to spread dairy activity in every part of the country, said Rath. "Although we are talking about white revolution, India's map isn't white as yet. There are still some dark spots, where small producers are left out and require market access," he added.

It is important to give the farmers in remote areas more market access for their inclusion in the dairy systems, "either through cooperatives or through producer companies", said Rath. "This is one area where we feel there is a gap and we need to do more," he added.

The point is to create support infrastructure for dairying and make it a professional activity with better market access. NDDB also looks at creating milk quality testing equipment at critical points of procurement areas, besides expanding the coverage into uncovered areas. Today, there are about 3.20 lakh villages with potential. Of these, dairy activity has reached about 2 lakh villages, leaving about 1.2 lakh yet to be covered.

Focus regions

The focus regions will be the North-East, other eastern States and those where there are areas facing an access challenge. Besides, NDP-2 will target animal disease control, which is critical for Indian milk products to reach global markets.

NDP-1 has achieved most of its desired goals—of increasing milk production in the country by implementing breed development and improvement programmes. Milk production has grown at more than 6 per cent in the past five years.

NDP-1 was aimed at improving breed with the production of high-genetic bulls and enhancing the reach of the cooperative structure. Under the scheme, an additional 55,000 villages were covered for milk collection.

NDP is largely financed by a loan from the International Development Association of the World Bank with implementing agencies appointed across States by the NDDB.

The gold rally has ended, for now

COMMENTARY

G CHANDRASHEKHAR

More often than not, gold is a lucky commodity. Whenever market forces turn less supportive and prices come under downward pressure, something happens to prop the yellow metal up. This time is no exception.

Gold was under pressure the whole of November and lost around 4 per cent in price. It happened for a variety of reasons, including stronger dollar, the rising US stock market, signs of a détente in the US-China trade friction and of course, enervated demand in major markets such as India and China.

Psychological level

As is its wont, the metal defied many a bullish prediction. The gold market play put incurable bulls and many analysts to shame as price moved decisively below the psychological $1,500 a troy ounce, towards $1,450/oz. (See Business Line Commentary on November 8 and November 19).

However, a new set of factors have emerged creating renewed uncertainty among market participants. Eruption of fresh skirmish between the US and China in the form of the US President Trump signing laws purportedly targeting Hong Kong has annoyed China no end. Far from conciliation, this can weaken the already fragile situation.

Also, there are incipient signs of a currency war that Trump may start waging if one went by his recent tweets. The US President continues to put the Federal Reserve under pressure to reduce interest rates further.

The new developments have come as a saviour for the yellow metal. In other words, the prospect of a Phase One agreement between the two largest economies of the world is gradually receding. This should logically provide support to gold as a safe haven asset.

The strength of the bearish factors cannot be overlooked, though. Mainly, Asian consumer demand has been subdued this year; and for all intents and purposes, the same will continue in 2020 because of the highly unaffordable price of jewellery in the local currency in India and China. There is palpable demand compression as price elasticity of demand asserts itself.

Evidence of this is available in the form of gold imports into China and India. Continuing from previous months, during October, import into China from different origins fell to what is described as historically low levels. Jewellery sales remained below normal during October in the Asian major.

In a similar vein, imports into India were down 15 per cent year on year in October. While much bet was placed on festival demand, sales during the season failed to lift gold physical demand markedly. Demand continues to remain lacklustre as rural incomes are not seen rising adequately. Many rural areas witnessed kharif crop losses because of unseasonal rains till the end of October.

India's November imports of an estimated 70 tonnes, although 5-month high, are still down year-on-year. And, adding to the high rate of customs duty, the rupee continues to remain weak at about 71 to a dollar, making landed cost rather high.

May stay subdued

Given these challenging conditions, investment demand is also seen weakening. Under the circumstances, gold is likely to end 2019 on a subdued note trading in the $1,450-1,500 range. Currently (Tuesday) it is trading at $1,460/oz.

Chances are high that the sentiment will spill over to the first quarter of 2020, which means that the chances of a renewed rally in the yellow metal look slim on current reckoning. However, until the US-China spat shows signs of abating, the yellow metal may manage to hold on to $1,450/oz levels and not slide substantially below it.

QUICKLY

Chana holds steady

Indore, December 3
Amid slack and subdued demand, chana ruled stable at Indore's mandis with chana (kanta) quoted at ₹4,375-4,000 a quintal, chana (desi) at ₹4,300, while chana (vishal) was quoted at ₹4,250-4,300. Chana dal (average) quoted at ₹5,200-5,300, chana dal (medium) at ₹5,400-5,500, while chana dal (bold) ruled at ₹5,600-5,700. Dollar chana also ruled flat at ₹5,500-5,800.

India heading for record tea production this year

P SUNDAR

Coomoor, December 3
Despite a disappointing October, India is heading towards record production of tea this calendar year, thanks to higher output in previous months.

"The Tea Board has now released the data for October, which shows a decline in production in both the South and North due to adverse weather conditions. South India lost 1.82 million kg (mkg) to produce 25.23 mkg, while North India lost 4.08 mkg to produce 151.68 mkg", Rajesh Gupta, compiler of Global Tea Digest, told BusinessLine.

"Collectively, India's production in October fell by previous months," Gupta said. This increase of 21.26 mkg marked a gain of 1.83 per cent. The increase would have been more had it not been for a fall of 6.39 mkg or 3.44 per cent in the South, where output dropped to 179.16 mkg from 185.55 mkg. Here again, production would have been more had it not been for Tamil Nadu losing 4.4 mkg to produce 127.07 mkg and Kerala losing 1.53 mkg to produce 48.35 mkg due to bad weather.

North Indian output increased by 27.65 mkg to reach 1,004.11 mkg from 976.46 mkg, Gupta disclosed. Assam continued to top the country's production table at 621.71 mkg, up 6.47 mkg. With official data remaining only for two more months, producers estimate that if this trend continues, India's production this calendar would be around 1,360 mkg – the highest ever for the country.
